GRAND JURY HAS "JUST STARTED"

Jury Hears Report Of Flat Top Finance at Session

(Associated Press)

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., May 22—The Jefferson county grand jury has "just started" to probe convict conditions in this county, authorities said here today after plans had been made to delve into many complaints coming from Banner Mines, a property owned by the Alabama By-Products corporation. At this property the state delivers coal at so much per ton aboard cars. The convicts are worked underground by the state.

The grand jury today heard a report on the finances of Flat Top prison from C. C. Brooks, state examiner of accounts. When the jury investigated conditions at Flat Top recently in connection with the death of James W. Knox and other convicts, allegations were made concerning the camp's financial affairs. The ramifications into the system at that camp brought six indictments for first degree murder.

The grand jury on next Wednesday will resume the examinations of witnesses in the Banner Mine complaints. Assistant Solicitor Willard Drake declared that he had unearthed there a reign of terror that surpassed conditions at Flat Top. Meantime the jury were working on Flat Top.

BAPTISTS MAKING STEADY PROGRESS

Final Report Is Held Back For Further Canvassing

Steady progress is being made in the preparation for beginning work in the new building for Central Baptist church. The finance committee met Thursday evening, and reported favorably, having found much interest at each place they had called, but on account of the scattered membership had to ask for further time before making the final report. A total of $45,000 was the amount reported thus far, and each member of the committee determined to complete canvassing and believed by next Monday night they would "go over the top" in their goal of $60,000, which is to be paid within the 10 month beginning June at the balance of the cost of the building to be, if necessary, carried for a short time on a loan.

There will not be any services at the Central Baptist church on Sunday morning, on account of the Commencement sermon to be heard at the Princess theater but on Sunday evening the church a mass meeting will be held to create further interest and report progress in detail on the building program, this service to be conducted by Chairman Wm. R. Spight, in the absence of the pastor, who is out of town to preach a commencement sermon. A large number of the membership is expected to attend and participate in this service.

Resume Bailing This Afternoon

Bailing is expected to be resumed Saturday at English Number one, being sunk near here by the Albany-Decatur Oil and Gas company. The barker, recently ordered, was being placed and the casing replaced early Saturday. It was believed the job would be finished during the day.

Use Of Police And Sheriffs Will Be Confined To California, Andrews Announces, As Experiment In Extending Law.

(Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, May 22—Use of local police and sheriffs as federal prohibition agents, made possible under an order issued yesterday by President Coolidge, will be confined, for the present, to California, Assistant Secretary Andrews in charge of prohibition enforcement, decided today.

To what extent the order will be utilized if the California experiment proves successful has not been decided Mr. Andrews said. He added, however, that a nation-wide enlistment of state, county and city police as prohibition agents was not contemplated.

Defending the order, which has been criticized severely, by a number of senators, the Assistant Secretary declared: "This is not the time to talk about state's rights, so far as prohibition is concerned."

"When the people wrote the 18th amendment into the constitution," he said, "they decided the federal government should have the police power hitherto reserved by the states."

"They forced us to use the police power, making jurisdiction concurrent between the federal and state governments."

"I must lean on states and communities to carry their burdens in the enforcement of the prohibition law."

GREYCLAD WARRIORS LOOK ON MEMORIAL

Dimming Eyes Of A Passing Generation See Carving

(Associated Press)

ATLANTA, May 22—The thin grey line of the Confederacy formed today before Stone Mountain and many veterans for the first and last time gazed upon the beginning of the giant memorial to the "Lost Cause."

Those in charge of the arrangement that brought several hundred veterans by special train from the annual reunion at Birmingham, said that in all probability the spectators comprised the largest body of Confederate Veterans ever to visit the scene of the Memorial at one time.

Through telescopes and field glasses the dimming eyes of the veterans looked upon the roughly chiseled face of General Robert E. Lee and beheld the outlines of others of their heroes who will be carved into the granite of the mountain.

Crowd Expected To Hear Prof. Church

Though the Music Study clubs of these cities have not had sufficient opportunity for widely advertising the appearance in recital Sunday afternoon of Prof. F. M. Church, organist, belief was expressed today that the First Methodist church, Decatur, will be filled to capacity at recital hour. Prof. Church's recital will begin at 4 o'clock. He is brought here by the Music Study clubs of the Cities and is a musician of note, directing music at Athens College.

Little Boy Blue Blows and Shiners Take To Timbers

Mother Goose was re-enacted early today seven miles southeast of Moulton when a modern Little Boy Blue, Moonshiner's version, blew a blast on his little trumpet and scared all his co-workers to the tall timbers. Deputies Ira Wright, J. R. Bates, of the Lawrence county forces and Kumpe Ayres, law enforcement officer, swept down upon a perfectly appointed distillery, only to find that the impetuosity of youth was destined to become a stumbling block. The alleged moonshiners fled, but the officers came homeward to Moulton with a 25 gallon still and captured 12 barrels of whiskey and 500 gallons of beer. The officers likewise added a pair of mules and a wagon to their capture. Had it not been for the signal from the lad it is thought that several law-breakers might have been taken into the toils of the law.

PADERWSKI SAILS ON FRENCH LINER

Query Unanswered As Former Premier Goes Homeward

(Associated Press)

NEW YORK, May 22—Ignace Paderewski, noted pianist and former premier of Poland today left the hotel Gotham where he has been confined with illness to sail for Europe.

At the hotel it was said that he had given no intimation on leaving what connection there might be between his departure and the present condition of affairs in Poland. When he was premier Marshal Pilsudski, who has recently assumed leadership in that country was for a short period a government official under the musician.

Officials of the French line replied to queries that Paderewski was listed to sail on the liner Paris but they could not say what his destination would be after landing in France.

Farmer Is Killed As Mule Runs Away

Funeral services were held in Center Grove Tuesday for Edward James Oden, 45 year old Cullman county farmer, who died of injuries received in a run-away accident, according to information received here today.

Mr. Oden, in company with his brother, Wilbur Oden, and Claude Lindsay were occupants of a buggy drawn by a mule. The animal became frightened, when a wheel dipped into a rut and caused a shaft to dig into the mule's side. On a curve the buggy turned over, Mr. Oden receiving a broken arm, broken shoulder and broken ribs, one of which pierced his lung. He was hurried to Birmingham hospital, but died Monday.

SEVENTY STUDENTS ARE CANDIDATES IN GRADUATING CLASS

Chapman And Purcell To Preach Sermons On Sunday

ACTIVE SEASON THROUGH WEEK

Faculties Pleased At Close of Successful School Year

Approximately 70 students will be graduated from Albany and Decatur high schools this year.

Though commencement activities were begun several days ago, the actual inauguration of commencement week will follow on Sunday when commencement sermons will be delivered by prominent speakers at the Princess theater Sunday morning and at Decatur high school Sunday evening at the high school auditorium. Suitable program will precede the distinguished speaker.

Both high school graduating classes will enter a maze of activities during the coming week when exercises, entertainments and class affairs have been planned.

The faculties and leaders of both systems today declared that they have enjoyed one of the most successful years in the history of the institutions.

BANKHEAD WILL BE HERE THIS EVENING

Candidate For Senate To Speak Saturday In Hartselle

John H. Bankhead, candidate for the United States senate, Saturday carried his campaign into the heart of the Tennessee Valley.

Following an address Saturday afternoon at Hartselle, Mr. Bankhead was scheduled to come to the Lyons hotel here, where he planned to remain overnight, going to Huntsville Sunday. Mr. Bankhead is scheduled to deliver an address to the voters of Madison County Monday morning, at the opening of the week's term of circuit court.

Friends of Mr. Bankhead stated Saturday they planned an informal reception for him at the hotel Saturday evening. An invitation was extended to all citizens to call on him at that time.

Knighen Plants Surplus In Cotton

J. L. Knighen, Hartselle route 2 farmer, near Neel, will plant only his surplus in cotton this year, it was stated today, after a comparatively successful agricultural year, last year, with the employment of diversification method. Mr. Knighen, it is understood realized $1.50 per bushel for Irish potatoes, while his cotton price was not so profitable. He raised a quarter of an acre in Irish potatoes last year and on the same basis might have realized $600 per acre for the product. An acre of cotton would have produced a less price. This year Mr. Knighen is planting hay and grains, placing only surplus land in cotton.

Scout Leaders Are Still Behind Total

Leaders in the Boy Scout drive for the raising of $3,000 here, looking toward the establishment of a Tennessee Valley Council with four cities in the territory under jurisdiction, declared today that the total is not yet in sight. They expressed confidence that the goal will be ultimately reached, inasmuch as ladies have been active during this week in solicitation. The total raised was still unestimated.

Committees Named To Investigate Details Of Proposition

BALLEW FILES HIS REQUEST

Report Is Expected To Be Made To Council at Next Meeting

Possibility of a fall fair here was seen in the request for permission to bring a fair organization here in September, made to the Albany city council last night by Hugh Ballew.

Mr. Ballew, it will be recalled, has been instrumental in organizing a number of agricultural exhibits for Morgan County which have won prizes at the Alabama state fair and numerous other state and tri-state exhibitions.

Mr. Ballew offered to name as a committee to look into the details of the plan: B. L. Malone, J. A. Thornhill, L. P. Troup, J. D. Thomas and J. D. Ligon. President Maxwell, of the council, named as a committee to represent the council: Aldermen Buck, Chunn and Royer.

These two committees were expected to go into all of the details of the proposal and to make a report to the Albany city council, at its next regular meeting, when the council will decide whether or not the exhibition will be permitted.

FUND APPROPRIATED TO ALBANY SCHOOLS

Council Votes Money To Board After Request Made

The Albany city council last night voted a fund of $7,500 for the schools, which fund will enable the institutions to complete the scholastic year without financial worry.

The action of the council, followed the appearance before the aldermen of school officials. B. L. Malone, of the school board, told the council it had been estimated that the schools would need possibly $9,000, but that it had been ascertained the amount would likely not be in excess of $7,500 and that sum was voted promptly by the aldermanic board.

PARK ACTS SIGNED BY THE PRESIDENT

Lands Are Donated For Sites By Individuals and Two States

(Associated Press)

WASHINGTON May 22—The act creating the Shenandoah national park in Virginia, and the Great Smoky Mountain national park in North Carolina and Tennessee was signed today by President Coolidge.

Creation of the parks will involve no initial expense on the part of the government, the lands being given in accordance with recommendations of Secretary Work of the interior department.

Administration of the parks is to be under the national park service.

The Shenandoah national park is located in the Blue Ridge of Virginia and comprises over $500,000 acres, the acquisition being provided for through $1,200,000 subscribed by the state of Virginia.

The Great Smoky Mountain national park comprises over 700,000 acres for purchase of which $1,066,693 has been subscribed by the state of Tennessee the Great Smoky Mountain Conservation Association and the Great Smoky Mountains Inc., of North Carolina and others.

CHIEF OF ENGINEERS DECLARES RIGHTS TO FULL FLOW OF RIVER

No Grants Ever Made By State, Major General Says

STATE OWNS BED OF THE STREAM

Federal Rights Said To Be Paramount To Those of Alabama

(Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, May 22—The war department made public today extracts from a letter by Major General Taylor, chief of engineers, replying to inquiries as to any action taken by the state of Alabama in connection with the construction of Wilson Dam on the Muscle Shoals project.

General Taylor said that no grants of property on the Tennessee river had been made by the state, the easements required in connection with lands to be overflowed having been either purchased from private owners donated or obtained by condemnation.

The ownership of the bed of the Tennessee river, on which the dam is built, is understood to be in the state but such ownership is qualified by an easement in favor of the federal government for the benefit of navigation.

General Taylor said: "The federal government has a right to the full flow of the river and the right to occupy and use for the improvement of navigation the whole body of the stream, and the soil thereunder between ordinarily high water lines and this right is paramount and exclusive of any state or private rights in such areas."

REPORTER ON STAND IN CARROLL'S TRIAL

Alcoholic Content Of Fluid In Bath-tub Under Discussion

(Associated Press)

NEW YORK, May 22—Whether the bath-tub at Earl Carroll's party contained intoxicating or non-intoxicating champagne apparently is a question to be decided at his trial for perjury, which will be resumed Monday.

Arthur Irwin, a reporter for the tabloid Daily Mirror, testified yesterday in federal court of having seen champagne bottles near a tub, in which a nude model bathed. Carroll told the grand jury the tub contained ginger ale. Irwin said he distinctly remembered the name of the label of the bottles. He spelled out the name "p-o-l-r-o-g-e-t." Then came a question involving an "r" and "a" and pronunciation of "French."

"Why, don't you know," defense counsel asked, "that the real champagne of that name is spelled polroget?"

"No sir," A non-intoxicating beverage, called "polroget champagne" is said to be on the market. The punctuation is said to be that of the alcoholic brand. Paul H. Reuben, another reporter for the Daily Mirror, asked how he knew the tub contained champagne, said "by the taste. It was not sweet nor bitter, yellowish in color and of a pleasant taste."

Judge Goddard instructed the jury that labels were not conclusive evidence of the content of a bottle.

High witnesses, all connected with The Daily Mirror, told the same story of having seen a young woman, whom they were told by Carroll and others was Joyce Hawley, disrobe behind a cloak and get into a tub filled with champagne; and of 10 or 15 guests "lining up" for drinks while she was in the tub.

GOLDEN COCOON

RUTH CROSS

SYNOPSIS

Gregory Cochran, lawyer and political leader, is sheltering in his mother's home Molly Shannon, university student, whom he rescued from the river, when, wandering aimlessly at night, she plunged in. Molly had become despondent when deserted by her fiancé, Stephen Renfro, efficiency expert, who married the daughter of "rich old Jim Dillworth." Cochran, proving a true friend, is gradually winning Molly's confidence and she is relating her sorrows to him.

She was magnificent indeed. She was faultless, consummate—in every detail from the exquisite waves of silver drawn from brow to ears, the web of creamy old lace at throat and wrists, to the hem of her lustrous black silk. Her magnificence consisted, though, not in her clothes; neither in her coiffure nor in the perfection of her grooming. Molly saw that at once, even while she shivered into nothingness in comparison. No, she was innately and predestinedly magnificent. It was in the very way she stood on the threshold—the quietness of poise, the last word in presence. One had not far to seek where her son came by his success of motion, his "serene as a god above a storm."

To the latter she addressed herself, without noting, apparently, that there was anyone else in the room. "Glad dear, the telephone is really getting too much for me,

After a barely perceptible pause, the older woman bowed—slightly.

and, besides, you know you're due in the court-room at eleven . . . " "Yes, mother; I'm just coming. But while you're here, I want you to meet Miss Shannon. . . . He stopped a little to one side that there might be no further supposition of Molly's not being seen. "Miss Shannon, my mother."

After a barely perceptible pause, the older woman bowed—slightly. She was looking rather over Molly than at her, and she did not advance a step farther into the room.

Molly bowed also—in silence. "Miss Shannon, by the way, is going back to school on Monday."

He added, unperturbed by his mother's evident disapproval of Molly and all that had to do with her. "We just agreed it's the best possible thing." He turned to Molly with a humorous question in his eyes. "We have agreed, haven't we?"

"At least you have," she answered humbly. "It comes to the same. And, mother—I want you to ask Miss Shannon to have dinner with us as soon as she feels up to it—say tomorrow evening or the evening after."

There was a second pause, more portentous than the first. In the air was a measuring of words. Molly felt it—over her head—as clearly as though she heard the clank of steel—why, she asked herself, daily resentful, should they be crossing swords over her? She didn't want to have dinner with them. She didn't want anything—but to be left alone.

At last Sarah Cochran said slowly, but with meticulous courtesy, "We shall be glad to have Miss Shannon any time she cares to come, I'm sure." Her eyes were fixed, not on the prospective guest, but on her son.

CHAPTER XVIII

Stephen Renfro's marriage was still a nine days' wonder, on everybody's lips, at the reassembled university. Wherever Molly went she knew that his name was whispered. Curious, speculative, no doubt pitying glances were exchanged behind her back. Occasionally some one more inquisitive—or less considerate—than the rest spoke of him to her. Here and there a darker suspicion raised its head, a suspicion never lacking where a woman has been scorned and thrown aside. There was Miss Brian too. She never said anything, but her very existence was a silent reminder, an unintentional reproach.

All that did not matter so much—once the first dreadful step was taken. Molly soon found she was incased in a practically seamless armor of apathy and indifference, which turned aside each recurring blow. She held the friendly and the curious alike at arm's length, went her way and asked nothing of anybody but to be let alone. The truth was, one poison had killed another.

To keep moving was her only salvation. Across her tiny room she went continuously back and forth while she ranned her lessons or in the corridor moved up and down, up and down, to the rhythm of French verbs and Latin meters. Every hour that she could spare she was out of doors, walking feverishly, driven by her own particular allotment of furies. She covered every foot of road and trail and open country within reach again and again; walked until she was so spent she could not choose but lie quietly at night, even if she did not sleep. More often than not, when Gregory Cochran was in town, he would drop by the dormitory after the study hour, and the two of them would walk round and round the "perip" until bedtime. Molly's bedtime, which was early. Evidently not a word was spoken. He was notably the least talkative man in the state.

Mrs. Parker knew nothing of what had taken place after Molly left her house that August evening save what Cochran saw fit to tell her of an "accident" in the street. He did not mince words particularly as to her own remissness in letting the girl go out alone—under the circumstances. This weighed but lightly, however, on Mrs. Parker's ricocheting spirits. Assured that her protégée was in no serious danger, though she could not be moved for some weeks—her elatedly hopeful old mind leaped at once to the gratifying conclusion that the "hand of the Lord" was in it. Before Gregory Cochran's broad and well-tailored back was fairly turned on the boarding-house he was a marked man.

As months passed and Cochran's kindly oversight of Molly's fate showed no signs of falling off, elation waxed to such triumphal intensity that she could not refrain from some hint of her prophetic inspiration with the hope, no doubt, of having them confirmed. "Just wait 'til Stephen Renfro sees you in the Governor's mansion!" she exulted openly one day, when Molly had dropped in for a little kitchen visit. The visits were briefer and farther apart of late. They seemed not to have so much to talk about. "I reckon that'll make him sit up and take notice!"

Molly looked at her for some moments in blank and unenlightened silence. Her mind groped vainly for any intelligible point of contact. She had, of course, heard Gregory Cochran named in connection with the governorship, but no relation between that fact and herself had ever occurred to her. It did not occur to her now.

"Please," she concluded earnestly, "you must not only never say such a thing again; you mustn't even think of it. I'm no more to him than a half-drowned kitten he's pulled out of a slimy pond and warmed back to life. He's as impersonal as—God."

Mrs. Parker shook her head, fondly unconvinced, but she agreed straightway to keep her own counsel, and Molly passed on to the business which had brought her over. She had saved fifteen dollars toward repaying the money she owed. "I wish it were the whole seventy-five," she said, opening her handbag and taking out the bills. "I know how much you need it."

The other pushed the money back across the table with floury hands, mumbling absently that she was not to bother her with such gross and earthy matters, she was rapidly envisaging Molly in a trailing velvet gown, hair done high, and jewels at her throat, holding grand levee in the Governor's mansion. "You don't owe it to me, now," she added, still from the depths of her trance.

Molly stared. "What do you mean—I don't owe it to you?" she demanded. "The fairy godmother rained back from the Governor's ball, minus her coach and four, and arrived somewhat panicky and out of breath. "Why," she stammered, "I wasn't thinkin'."

"If I don't owe it to you," Molly persisted, not taking her eyes for an instant off the scared old face, "to whom do I owe it?"

"Oh, shucks! I wasn't payin' any attention to what I was sayin'." Mrs. Parker pootpooted manfully. "Of course you owe it to . . ."

"To whom do I owe it?" Molly repeated, her voice chilling with the certainty of the truth.

FARM DEMONSTRATION NOTES

CANNING BUDGET FOR ALABAMA

"Too few vegetables and fruits occur in the daily menu of the majority of our Alabama people."

Health is influenced largely by the amount of fruits and vegetables in the diet.

Fruits and vegetables contain vitamins, mineral matter, and roughage. Vegetables other than potatoes and dried beans should be served twice daily.

Fruits should be served at least three times a week.

Tomatoes should be served at least three times a week.

In some parts of Alabama it is possible to have at least one fresh vegetable growing in the garden each day during the year. Since two are required it is necessary to can one vegetable per day for the winter months.

In other sections of the State the two vegetables will have to be provided for during the winter months.

Fresh Vegetables for Each Season:
Spring—Turnips, onions, English peas, cabbage, mustard, spinach, lettuce.

Summer—Beans, peas, onions, tomatoes, corn, carrots, beets, lettuce, turnips.

Fall—Carrots, tomatoes, peas, beans, turnips, collards, beets, corn.

Winter—Turnips, carrots, collards, spinach, mustard, lettuce.

At least one leafy vegetable may be grown in the garden 12 months a year.

A supply of vegetables as tomatoes, beans, peas, corn, beets and carrots must be canned to provide an adequate diet.

The Pleasant Hill Sewing Club girls met at the school house, April 14th for their regular monthly meeting.

We began cutting out our slips as soon as possible. All the girls got their slips cut out and basted, they are now ready to sew.

Miss Hamilton took our picture once while we were cutting our slips out, she took another one just before lunch, the last one she took we were sewing. We had a nice time out under the trees cutting our slips out. After we got them cut out, we went in the house to baste them, and to have our business meeting.

The club was called to order by the reporter, the vice president has moved away, so we had to elect a vice president. Minutes of the last meeting were read.

Miss Hamilton explained many things about directions and many other things about underwear.

We had a yell and some club songs and adjourned by repeating our club pledge to meet May 12th to finish our slips.

Signed: Viola Bynum, Reporter, Assistant Secretary.

Then we got to work sewing on our slips. All the girls got the seams sewed on their slips ready to finish next time. We had a nice time out under the shade sewing.

Each member welcomed the three new members. Our club is getting larger each meeting. We had three visitors present. We had a club song and adjourned by repeating our club pledge to meet at Louise Robinson's for our next meeting.

Signed: Viola Bynum, reporter.

A hydraulic ram is cheap, easily installed, operates from the power of the flowing water and will run for many years without repairs or expense.

There are hundreds of homes in the county which have springs that will operate hydraulic rams. Miss Hamilton, home demonstration agent, and I are both interested in this line of work. If you need us, call on us. If your problem is too difficult for us, we will call on Mr. Barnes.

TROOPERS GUARD ACCUSED NEGRO

Defendant Is Charged With Slaying Of Constable

(Associated Press)

HAZARD, Ky., May 22—Armed with machine guns, a detachment of troops of the Kentucky National Guard today stood guard at the county jail here to prevent mob violence against Arlie Walker, 17, negro, confessed slayer of Constable T. H. Wilder.

The Hazard machine gun company was ordered out late yesterday by Adjutant General Kehoe, at the request of Special Judge H. C. Faulkner, when threats to lynch the young negro were made.

Constable Walker was shot Thursday night while taking a negro girl he had arrested at a street carnival to jail.

This is the fourth time this year that Kentucky National Guardsmen have been ordered out to prevent mob violence. Approximately 1,000 guardsmen were on duty in Lexington when Ed Harris, negro, went on trial February 2, charged with attacking a white woman, and a small number of troopers were on duty when he was hanged March 5.

In April 500 National Guardsmen were on duty in Madisonville, during the trial of a trio of negroes, charged with attacking a woman.

A special grand jury has been ordered to convene Monday to investigate the slaying of Constable Wilder.

Mrs. Tipple Gary Dies at Early Age

Fine Steel Explains The Car's Long Life

This fact should be read and remembered by everyone who ever expects to buy a motor car.

In the percentage of costly Chrome Vanadium steel used, Dodge Brothers Motor Car outranks every other car in the world, regardless of price.

Chrome Vanadium is the ideal motor car steel. Its remarkable toughness and strength account for the fact that more than 90% of all the motor cars Dodge Brothers have built are still in service.

GATHERED FROM ALL OVER THE ELLENEN

By Thomas E. Owen

May first rounded out the forty-fifth year of service of Charles F. Giles, Superintendent of machinery of the Louisville and Nashville railroad. Beginning his career as a journeyman machinist in 1881 at Birmingham, Ala., he was promoted successively to roundhouse foreman at that point, next master mechanic assistant superintendent of machinery, and superintendent. The latter position he assumed in 1911 and is now head of one of the largest departments of the railroad.

Twelve hundred members and guests of the L. and N. co-operative club, a social organization of the Louisville and Nashville railroad employees, recently enjoyed a delightful evening in the Kossair Temple's beautiful ball room in Louisville, Ky. Among other features of the entertainment, several members of the club did their "bit" much to the enjoyment of those present.

After a continuous service of thirty-nine years and ten months with the Louisville and Nashville Railroad company, August Backs, an employee of the Henderson-St. Louis Division of that road, has been retired from active service.

David C. Vohlers, a gang foreman in the machine shop of the Louisville and Nashville railroad at Albany, Ala., was recently retired after a continuous service of eighteen years and two months.

Tunnel Watchman Robert R. Moss, employee of the Louisville and Nashville Railroad company at Cumberland Gap, Tenn., was retired from active service recently after a continuous service of thirty-one years.

After a continuous service of nineteen years and four months with the Louisville and Nashville railroad company, Thomas Berry Brown, a cabinet maker in the South Louisville Shops, was retired from active service in accordance with the policy of that company.

Conductor William F. Steimle of the Evansville division of the Louisville and Nashville railroad company was retired from active service recently after a continuous service of twenty years and nine months.

Ed Williams, colored laborer at the Lexington Shops of the Louisville and Nashville railroad company, was retired from active service recently after a continuous service of thirty-eight years and three months. "Sugar Babe," as he was familiarly known, was born on November 30, 1841 and his entire life has been spent in and around Lexington, Ky. His first railroad service was with the Kentucky Union railroad was later changed to the Lexington and Eastern which subsequently became a part of the Louisville and Nashville.

After a continuous service of twenty years and four months, John Lawrence Peck, locomotive engineer on the Alabama Mineral Division of the Louisville and Nashville railroad, was retired from active service recently.

Stationary Fireman Gus Murray of the New Orleans, La. Shops of the Louisville and Nashville railroad company was retired from active service recently after a continuous service of thirty-two years and four months.

Harrison Wright, section laborer at Deatsville, Ala., for the Louisville and Nashville railroad company, was retired recently after a continuous service of thirty-five years.

One of the largest Safety meetings on record was held by employees of the Louisville and Nashville railroad company on April 6 in the spacious wareroom of the freight depot of that company at Paris, Tenn., under the chairmanship of Mr. A. B. Scates, superintendent of the Memphis division of the Louisville and Nashville railroad and chairman of the Memphis division safety committee. Various phases of safety work were gone into to good advantage. Among the speakers of the evening was Mr. J. J. Elder, executive assistant, Louisville, Ky.

One morning recently, Conductor I. S. Cox and Engineer G. J. Reiter, in charge of L. C. and L. Division train No. 43 of the Louisville and Nashville Railroad company, while heading into the side track at Thorne, Ky., found a tree which had been blown across the tracks during a storm a few hours before. After protecting passenger train No. 19, which was about due, the engine of No. 43 was used, in conjunction with a large chain, to drag the tree from the tracks.

ST. PAUL'S CHURCH PROPERTY IS SOLD

Harris Will Build New and Handsome Home
On Church Site

Sale of St. Paul's Episcopal church property to R. N. Harris, Jr., was announced Saturday the sale having been concluded through Thomas E. Pride, well known local realty dealer. The consideration involved in the transaction was not made public.

The sale includes the lot on the corner of Ferry and Walnut streets, on which now stands the church building, the lot on the corner of Walnut and Wells, on which stands the rectory, recently damaged by fire.

It is understood that Mr. Harris plans to erect a handsome home on the corner lot at the intersection of Ferry and Walnut, razing the present church building. He also plans to repair and improve the rectory, it is said.

Hobson Makes Tour Of North Alabama

Captain Richmond Pearson Hobson, hero of the Merrimac, and internationally known lecturer, will make a tour of North Alabama next week, delivering his famous lecture "The Crisis" at the following places: Gadsden and Albertville, Sunday; Huntsville and Scottsboro, Monday; Athens and Florence, Tuesday; Russellville and Jasper, Wednesday.

Odd Fellows Will Decorate Graves

Odd Fellows of Albany-Decatur and surrounding country will assemble at the city cemetery Sunday afternoon to decorate the graves of their deceased brothers.

Dr. C. C. Davison, pastor of the Decatur Baptist church, will deliver the address of the afternoon.

Members of the order will assemble at the I. O. O. F. hall on Second avenue and go in a body to the cemetery where the exercises will be held after which the graves will be decorated. A cordial invitation is extended to the public to attend.

WATER FROM UNDER THE BLUFF

(By J. C. Ford, County Agent)
Mr. Albert M. Peck, who lives on the Decatur-Somerville pike at the top of the mountain has a wonderful spring under the bluff back of his home. M. A. Barnes, farm home specialist, from Auburn, with my assistance, found this spring to be 100 feet lower than the house. A hydraulic ram was installed which is delivering this water into the yard. Later in the year, Mr. Peck plans to install a complete water system including hot and cold water in the kitchen.

Add peutrid puns: The situation at Mobile still Boyles.

The Junior Chamber of Commerce appears to be setting a fast pace in industrial development. Will the rest of the community keep step?

Many Alabamians have an idea Senator Heflin would welcome relief from the present perplexing situation he finds himself in. The summer bids fair to be warm for Cotton Tom. First a squabble over Muscle Shoals, then another over the Mobile district attorney's re-nomination.

See that the miners have rejected Premier Baldwin's offer and perhaps they have reason to reject the offer, yet it is not difficult to see the outcome of the strike so soon as the striker's belt line gets loose. Capital is that way, like a sleeping lion, better asleep than if awakened.

News that Daugherty has been released on $5,000 bail is not particularly interesting, the public generally likes to know much sooner if Babe Ruth hit another home run, feeling that the Daugherty probe will sooner or later fall down as other Senate controversial points have in the past.

There is something good in everything, the slow movement of real estate in these cities can only mean that property is valuable and that persons owning property do not wish to sell. If property values are measured in futures The Daily cannot see reason for turning loose property at this time.

The industries will select this site if we outbid the other communities trying to get them in line, there is no use thinking that they are going to select this site of their own accord. The job of obtaining industries this day and time is more a matter of money than of location. Combined money and location is going to spell the future of these cities. Enter the competition now, for your cities, and the ultimate benefit to yourself.

"DON'T CARE" ATTITUDE ON PART OF VOTERS TOWARD SENATE RACE UNFORTUNATE

Several of the state exchanges have discovered a "don't care" attitude on the part of some voters of their communities in regard to the campaign for the United States senate.

If this condition is widespread, it is, indeed, an unfortunate thing for the state of Alabama.

Whatever his enemies may say of Senator Oscar W. Underwood, who will retire at the expiration of his present term, he is a man of wide influence and his retirement will deprive Alabama of much prestige in the senate. It is highly important that in selecting his successor, that the people of Alabama send a man well equipped to carry on in the halls where once the voice of Morgan, Pettus and Underwood have resounded.

The next senator from this state will face the handicap of succeeding a legislator with an international reputation.

The next senator from Alabama is very likely to succeed himself in accordance with the democratic precedent of re-warding the party's nominees with a second term. Given two terms in the senate, and it would be a poor solon, indeed, who could not, on the plea of widening influence, get himself elected for a third term.

Obviously, then, the man the people of Alabama select to represent them in the senate, after Senator Underwood's retirement, is very apt to remain in Washington for a good many years, barring the hazards of life and a political upheaval.

This should be sufficient to make every voter weigh carefully the claims that are made by the various candidates, in order that Alabama's selection may be the best for the state.

VIRGIN ISLAND RESIDENTS NOT ENTIRELY PLEASED WITH U. S. ADMINISTRATION

The New York World expresses veiled contempt for the United States administration of affairs in the Virgin Islands and predicts congress will be in no hurry to pass legislation for relief of the islanders, inasmuch as the 25,000 inhabitants of the islands have no votes.

The World says:

The United States paid Denmark $25,000,000 for the Virgin Islands. The population, white and black, then numbered 26,000. At the time the islands were eager for annexation. That was over eight years ago. Today they are not so well pleased with the reality of American rule.

The fine harbor of St. Thomas is idle. The trade of the islands languishes; the bayrum industry, once the principal source of income, has been destroyed—under prohibition Americans might drink the West Indian hair tonic. As for government, the president appoints a naval officer, in whom are vested military, civil and judicial powers, an admirably compact arrangement for the exercise of supreme authority. The naval governors come and go in quick succession; on the average there has been a new one every six months. The best and worst of them may be excellent officers, but the system does not satisfy the people of the islands. Obviously it should not.

Why does not congress do something for the relief of the Virgin Islands? Who knows? The islanders have urged that as a matter of right their grievances be redressed. But congress really cannot find time. The house committee on insular affairs has reported a bill for the establishment of a permanent government for the Virgin Islands, and that is the end of it. A senate committee decides it cannot do anything at present because it lacks information. Why hurry, anyhow? The islanders have waited over eight years already. Next session, or the session after, some legislation may be possible. By that time St. Thomas probably will have received and bade farewell to half a dozen more naval governors, and the needs of the islanders will be so much greater that legislation will be more than ever beneficial. After all, there are only about 26,000 people down there and they have no votes.

In criticizing congress, the World exercises a prerogative universally recognized, to take congress to task on each and every occasion possible. The Daily wonders, however, if congress, in this particular case, is not making haste slowly with a definite view in mind.

The Virgin islanders, when this area was taken over from Denmark, were in a fearful economic condition. The agricultural resources of the island are not great and these resources, limited as they were, had not been well developed under the old regime.

The point made by the World that prohibition has curtailed the bayrum industry is well taken, for the islands formerly did export large quantities of the hair tonic, but if prohibition has made a re-arrangement of the economic life of the islanders necessary, it has done no worse for them than it has for those who owned real estate, liquor stocks, vineyards, brewers and distilleries in America. Prohibitionists never pretended that prohibition would not hurt, financially, some people.

The contention of prohibitionists always has been that it was a theory enacted into law for the greatest good for the greatest number.

The Virgin islands, primarily, provide a convenient naval base and a coaling base for liners. As the Daily recalls the matter, when the purchase was made, those favoring the purchase indicated this feature was the compelling motive for their attitude.

Of course, the islanders cannot vote. A ballot in the hands of a great many of that 26,000 noted by the World, would be handled only as intelligently as if placed in the hand of a child.

One has but to watch a group of these islanders fighting like chickens for the refuse from the ships to realize that congress, on this occasion, isn't so far wrong.

A TRAIN OF THOUGHTS for the Sabbath and Other Days

(By J. E. BLAIR)

"Why did God Choose Abraham?" asked thousands of teachers last Sunday. All who grasped the idea that Abraham was "growing in the right direction" were right in teaching such a doctrine. There was nothing unusual about Abraham except that he was "religious." Any well-to-do man would have desired to entertain the three strangers who came to Abraham's tent in the plain of Mamre. The only outstanding thing attempted by Abraham was the sacrifice of Isaac, the son of the promise. Certainly God did not call Abraham because that patriarch lied about who a certain woman was. No, it was not any one thing Abraham did, unless it was that he "would command his children and his family," that made Abraham the friend of God. It was even what Abraham was, that led to his divine call, it was what Abraham was "Becoming to be," there is the secret of the call.

In this connection, did you ever know that hair and nails are made out of the same kind of material? But nails fight and scratch. The hair is the crown of glory, for a woman at least the Bible says. The hair a "crown of glory," the nails mere instruments. They were made out of exactly the same material. One person becomes a useful citizen and "an ornament to society" while another person becomes a useless citizen and a mistake and a blot on the face of the earth. You say the last named kind of a person acted wrongfully. He may not have done a single wrong thing, he might never have told a lie like Abraham did, but one thing is sure "the blot" did fail to grow according to God's law. The "ornament to society" may have done many wrong things, but if like Abraham he grew, he was on his way to stand unafraid in the presence of God himself.

Away with the idea of "self-made" law, abiding "good citizens," who are not growing in grace. Let us accept the teaching that if we seek to "walk in the light as He is in the light," we may become the friends of God, even though we may sometimes make a mistake, just as the bank does occasionally. Granted a man who is "self-made," who, like the Rich Young Ruler kept the commandments, such a man will never wear the robes of righteousness as gracefully as old Abraham, liar though he was on one occasion.

It might be noted in closing that "because Abraham would command his own children," was very near good enough reason for God to choose him, very easy is it to believe this in view of this generation of obedient parents to with young people is to love them, but don't take their whims and false ideas of the young. The thing to do advice very often. Young Stanley High, who for the Methodists and others wrote "The Revolt of Youth," was a loveable young man but because he said before the International Sunday school convention lately held in Birmingham, how that he was glad certain white delegates walked across Evansville, Indiana, to eat with some negro delegates, he was asked by the Methodist pastors of Birmingham to stay off the public platform until like Topsy, he had "grewed." Stanley is a good boy, but he cannot think like the fathers of white girls until he gets to be a seasoned father. Like Abraham, High will be chosen as a leader after he has "grewed."

second elective term.

DEMOCRATIC politics considers the steady rise of Governor Smith of New York as a candidate for the next presidential nomination. He and his associates all over the country are working to abolish the two-thirds rule and the unit rule. Governor Smith would have some votes in many delegations that would be two-thirds against him, abolishing the two-thirds rule would give him the nomination if he succeeds in getting a bare majority. Governor Smith has earnest workers, hundreds of thousands of them, thoroughly understanding politics, working for him day and night. His nomination is by no means improbable.

HAD the two-thirds rule been ed once more, to invest their money in America, and keep away from foreign bonds. Foreign nations want to pay, but if they can't pay they can't. And the private investor, unlike the United States government, cannot bring pressure to bear on hundreds of millions of European bonds sold in the United States. Interest payments will be stopped and the value of the bond will gradually dwindle away. Take warning. Some of the bonds are probably good, but where European nations borrow at usurious rates, interest and principal will not be paid in full.

THE train on which this is written is passing just now through Kansas wheat fields so big that from the car window you cannot see to the end of them. You can remember how farmers scattered over these wide plains, feel as they read the "Grain Market Report," believing that men who never saw a wheat field or ran a harvesting machine, fix the price of wheat, and usually put it up after the farmer has sold his wheat.

THE WHITE HOUSE denies, unnecessarily, a foolish yarn about spiritualistic seances held there in the Coolidge administration. You couldn't have any first class table rapping in that atmosphere. One look at Calvin Coolidge's cold blue eye, and "Little Ninemah," spirit of the lovely Indian girl would say, "Let me get back to spirit land, where it is warm."

AT RENO, Nevada two murderers Sanko Jukich and John H. Randolph, will be suffocated, in the "Lethal Gas Chamber," one killed a young woman, the other killed his mother. The men locked in an air tight room will hear a slight hissing like that of a snake, and soon die. Representatives of the state and relatives of the condemned men if they choose, may watch the performance through a peep hole. That latest fashion in killing may frighten murderers more than the rope or electric chair—but it will not prevent murder. The state must set the example and stop the killing first.

YOU will know about the senatorial election in Pennsylvania when you read this. Mr. Pepper, in the primaries, represents President Coolidge and the administration. Congressman Vane, powerful Pennsylvania boss, runs as the representative of "Old King Alcohol." Gifford Pinchot, governor of the state, runs on an ice water platform, supporting prohibition because it is the law and because he believes in it. That election will have important results now and in 1928 when Mr. Coolidge is to be nominated for his

Postal's Request Given Committee

The request of the Postal Telegraph company for permission to erect poles in the city of Albany was referred to the street committee.

A representative of the telegraph company appeared before the council, at its regular meeting Friday evening, and voiced his request. The matter was referred to the committee, which probably will make a report at the next meeting.

abolished earlier, Champ Clark would have been nominated instead of Woodrow Wilson. That would have made a considerable difference in the world's history. Champ Clark would not have gone to Europe.

MATERIAL IS GIVEN REGARDING THE $75,000,000 ROADS BOND ISSUE

Questionnaire Going The Rounds Of The Voters To Explain Roads Bonds.

Material is being presented the voters over the state with regard to the $75,000,000 issue for good roads, the way in which the bonds will be paid and the amount of the tax that will be imposed to make the issue a reality. The following explanation is given:

1. In what way does the proposed $5,000,000 bond issue differ from the usual bond issue?

Ans. On a usual bond issue, interest is paid for the length of time the bond is to run. For instance, a bond due to be payable in thirty years carries interest each year for thirty years and then the amount owed is as much as it was when the debt was made. The $75,000,000 bonds proposed for highways and bridges differ from these bonds in this way. A part of the principal of the bond, as well as interest is paid each year, so if the bond is issued to run for twenty years at the end of the twenty years, there is no balance due on this bond. It is paid, both principal and interest, in kind of bonds are known as amortization bonds. The word amort means to kill off slowly. When applied to a bond, it means that the bond is paid off, principal and interest, from year to year, so that the final payment discharges the debt in full. This is the same plan the Federal Reserve Banks use in loaning money to farmers on their lands.

What amount of bonds could be sold on the present consumption of gasoline?

Ans. In 1925, the 2c tax on gasoline which goes to the counties brought in over two millions of dollars. The amount of annual revenue would be about fifty-seven million dollars of 4 per cent thirty year bonds. State is paying only 4 per cent interest on its highway bonds. There never have been seventy-five millions in bonds outstanding at one time.

How long would it require to retire these bonds from the revenue derived from the proposed 3c gasoline tax?

Ans. These bonds could be retired out twenty-five years.

What per cent of the proceeds of these bonds sold would go to the construction of roads?

Ans. Every dollar of the bonds would go in the construction of roads.

How could the expenses of the highway department be paid, other than actual cost of construction?

Ans. The expenses of the highway department can and will be paid in the future just as they have been in the past and are now being paid out of the license tax for tags and trucks.

From what funds have the expenses of the state highway department been paid during the expenditure of the existing twenty-five million dollar bond issue?

Ans. The expenses of the highway department have been paid out of the tag tax which the owners of trucks pay for the privilege of using their vehicles.

After paying this expense, what is the balance of the fund which said expenses are paid?

Ans. First, there is set aside from the money to pay the interest on bonds sold and to set up a fund to retire them. The first of the twenty-five million were paid on the 20th of July, 1922, and the license tag tax $2,200,000 on bonds have been already paid. The balance of this money is to maintain the roads built by the state free of expense to the county. In 1925, the highway department expended for the maintenance of highways already built by the state and federal government $500,000. The federal government does up the state maintain highways. What is the present income of the state from automobile license tags?

Ans. From October 1st, 1924 to October 1st, 1925, the state fiscal year, the amount paid for license tags tax was $1,945,959.99. For the first six months of the State fiscal year beginning October 1st, and running to October 1st, 1926, the state has collected license tags $2,058,055.09, or only 80 per cent of the license tag tax as 20 per cent of this tax in the counties where the cars are licensed.

How many more miles per gallon can the average car run on good roads than on poor roads?

Ans. A car will run at least twice as far on a gallon of gasoline over a good road as it will over an ordinary road. Experiments conducted by several show that a car will go more than twice as far on a good road than on a poor road, but it is not so easy to say that it is at least twice as far.

Do you believe it to be a fact that a 3c tax on gasoline will not only interest on and the bond but will at the same time pay the automobile owner who pays the tax, enough additional miles on and added life of his car to really re-imburse him with a substantial benefit?

Ans. I not only believe this to be a fact, but I know it to be a fact as attested by experienced users of cars the world over. Anyone can prove this statement to his own satisfaction by driving the same distance over a state highway as he does over the average country road and then measuring the amount of gasoline used on these trips. As to the added life of the car, it is safe to say that a car will last at least three times as long when used only on an improved highway than it will if used on the cross country roads.

11. Who would actually pay for the retirement of these bonds?

Ans. Those who use automobiles and trucks on the roads and only those who use these automobiles and trucks. These bonds do not affect the man who drives a wagon or buggy or rides horse back or walks on the road in any way; but the man who drives a motor vehicle over these highways, whether he lives in Alabama or some other state, would pay for these highways. He would pay, however, for only as much of the highway as he used. If he doesn't drive but ten miles in one year, he would only pay for the use of ten miles of road.

12. What has been the increase in the revenue derived from the present 2c gasoline tax since it has been levied?

Ans. The 2c gasoline tax went into effect in March, 1923. It was operative for that year for ten months. The amount collected from this tax in 1923 was $751,958.63. This gasoline tax goes to the counties. The counties for the ten months of 1923 each received $11,223.26. In 1924, each county received from this source $25,081.02. In 1925, each of the 67 counties received $31,338.74. This is an increase from 1923 to 1925 of over 200 per cent.

13. Do you consider that this increase in revenue has been brought about by the improved condition of state roads?

Ans. To what other cause can it be attributed? The country has been prosperous and for that reason there would be more gasoline used whether the roads had been improved or not, but the greater amount of this increase in the use of gasoline as every intelligent man will admit is due to the building of more highways. As soon as a state builds a road, the people who lived in the section, formerly forced to use horse drawn vehicles, substitute for these horse drawn vehicles, automobiles and trucks.

14. Do you propose to pay interest on the bonds and retire them out of the revenue derived from the 3c per gallon tax on gasoline only?

Ans. Yes, it is to be written in the Constitution, section 6, to secure the prompt and faithful payment of the principal and interest on highway bonds, the state shall levy a tax on gasoline, a substitute for gasoline or on any device used to propel motor vehicles, but never in excess of 3c per gallon on gasoline. This is in addition to the 2c per gallon tax now enjoyed by the counties which should never be disturbed.

15. Could the state levy a tax on any other property to meet its obligations of interest and sinking fund in the event the proposed three cent gasoline tax was insufficient?

Ans. The 7th provision of the amendment reads: "None of these bonds shall ever be sold unless the income to the state from a tax on gasoline, a substitute of gasoline or on any device used to propel motor vehicles is sufficient to pay the interest on the bonds sold and set up a sinking fund to retire them when due." With this provision the 3c tax on gasoline would have to be sufficient to pay interest and create a sinking fund to retire the bonds at maturity before they could be sold.

16. After fixing three cents per gallon on gasoline to pay interest and retire these bonds, could the State levy a greater amount?

Ans. No, no greater amount on gasoline could ever be levied than the amount that is fixed in the Constitution. To levy a greater amount would require a vote by the people of the whole state giving the state the right to do so.

17. Need the tax payer have any fear of having his assessment raised on tangible property in order for the state to be able to pay interest on and retire these bonds?

Ans. None whatever.

18. This seems very much like a pay as you go plan.

Ans. Yes, it is a pay as you go plan for those who ride the roads must buy the gasoline before they can drive a car. The plan proposed does away with the objections to the usual way of issuing bonds as well as the attempt to pay as you go which would bring about a raise of at least 150 per cent on present taxes and combines all of the advantages of both a bond issue and a pay as you go plan. The method is very simple. The state uses its annual income, which is brought about by a three cents gasoline tax and can then borrow a big amount of money at a low rate of interest with which to build its roads and highways. By this method and this alone can the present generation

Do you know why BUICK 4-wheel brakes are mechanical

Buick 4-wheel brakes are built on the same sound mechanical principle as the two-wheel brakes you always have used.

The brake on the outside front wheel releases when turning a corner. The outside front wheel needs to turn in a larger circle to avoid skidding and Buick brakes let it turn.

And the operating parts of Buick brakes are steel drop forgings.

For safety's sake, and for easier driving, pick Buick and Buick mechanical 4-wheel brakes.

ALABAMA EDITORS TO MEET IN JUNE

Press Association To Hold Convention In Auburn

(Associated Press)

AUBURN, May 22—Many Alabama Editors are expected here on June 2-4 when the annual convention of the Alabama Press association will be held.

Final plans for the convention were made recently at Montgomery by a committee composed of L. C. McLendon, Luverne, president, F. W. Stanley, Greenville, vice president, R. B. Vail, Bay Minette, secretary and P. O. Davis, agricultural editor, Auburn. Members of the committee were enthusiastic over the prospect of having the largest attendance in the history of the association.

Dr. Spright Dowell, president of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute, will deliver the address of welcome. Dr. Frank Willis Barlett, of Birmingham will discuss the International Press Foundation, together with H. L. Williamson of Indianapolis, secretary of the foundation. After President McLendon's annual address the banquet at Smith hall will close the day's session.

Frank N. Julian of Montgomery will be toastmaster.

On the second day, Grover Hall of Montgomery, will speak on "Alabama Journalism," F. G. Stephens of Oneonta, and P. O. Davis will discuss the "Press of Auburn." Ted Cottrell of Montgomery will talk on "Practical Journalism." Then will follow a general discussion of advertising, circulation, news, editorial and job shop, all under the topic of "New Ideas or old ideas that are still good."

A tour of Auburn will be the program after this wherein is promised an Auburn "surprise." Informal parties and picture shows will go to making up the day's entertainment.

On the following day unfinished business will be gone into with a report from committees and other routine matter. The election of officers is expected to follow this and be one of the most interesting phases of the meeting. Afterwards the convention will adjourn.

Every effort will be made toward entertaining the visitors while they are here with the hope also that they may gain a better vision of Auburn.

SIMPSON-CRAFT

A wedding of much interest to their circle of friends was that of Miss Ruby Craft to Mr. Harold Simpson, solemnized Thursday at noon at the Morgan County courthouse. Only a few friends of the young couple witnessed the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Simpson left immediately following the ceremony for a short trip to Birmingham and points South. They will be at home with Mr. and Mrs. B. N. Simpson.

John W. Sheppard left this morning for Savannah, Ga., after having been the guest of relatives here for the past two days.

Mrs. W. B. Shaeffer and Mrs. J. B. Cassels have returned from Birmingham where they visited relatives during re-union week.

Helpful Advice to Girls

By Annie Laurie

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am a girl 18 years of age. About a month ago I broke up with a young man whom at that time I thought I did not care for. But now that I do not see him I find that I love him dearly.

One night he had a "date" with me but did not keep it. The next day he called me up and I told him there was no explanation necessary.

However, I called him up and acknowledged my wrong, but now he won't listen to me.

What shall I do? ANXIOUS.

ANXIOUS: I think this young man's conduct has been almost unforgivably rude, my dear. But if you really care a lot about him you might give him another chance—when he asks for it. Of course, it would be most improper for you to make the advances. Wait until he asks you to forgive him before you resume his friendship. And if he does not get in touch with you then you must make up your mind to forget him.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am a girl in my twenties and was engaged to a young man who gave me a diamond ring, but who died before we were married. I am engaged now to another young man who has also given me a diamond ring.

Now the question is: "What shall I do with the first ring, as the young man is dead and I can not return it?" I have worn it on my right hand since his death.

The man to whom I am now engaged has never asked me not to wear it, but I think from his actions he would rather I did not.

TRIXIE.

TRIXIE: I think you ought to keep this ring as a very sacred memento of your former fiancé. But it would be in very bad taste for you to wear it now. Put it away safely and keep it always—but don't wear it, Trixie.

AMERICAN RANSOM'S WIFE AND DAUGHTER HELD SLAVES 10 YEARS

TEHERAN, Persia, May 22—A $200 money order, sent from Philadelphia has ransomed two American women who have been held as Moslem serfs for the past ten years. They are Mrs. Margaret Hovesepian, 40 years old, and her daughter, Angela, 17.

Mr. Hovesepian formerly lived in Persia, but is now a resident of Philadelphia, Pa. He lost all trace of his wife and daughter in a deportation ten years ago, and gave them up for dead. Recently he learned through the Near East Relief that they were captives of Named Pasha, a notorious bandit who demanded $200 for their ransom.

The money was forthcoming at once, and mother and daughter were freed a fortnight ago. They are now on their way to America and will arrive in Philadelphia early in June. Their case is said to be one of the most interesting of more than 25,000 which have been handled by the Missing Persons Bureau of the Near East Relief.

Collaboration between the United States and Italy for humanitarian work in the Near East has been proposed to the Italian people by the Rome newspapers.

Italy is intent upon economic and political penetration in the Near East but the newspapers point out that such penetration does not always win friendship. "Friendship is secured rather by disinterested charitable and humanitarian endeavor," says one editor. He declares that while America has had no political ambitions in these countries and only a negligible commercial interest there it has won the friendship and confidence of all the varied peoples of Neareastern countries through its educational, missionary and Near East Relief work. "Such friendship is what Italy needs from its Mediterranean neighbors," declares the Messaggero.

Fifteen children in the Near East Relief orphanage school at Syra, Greece, will be supported during the coming year by "voluntary" contributions from automobile speeders in Kansas City, Mo.

A fund of $1,000 has been provided for this purpose from fines levied by the Kansas City municipal court on a single day last month. About 125 violators of the local speed laws were forced to contribute on that day amounts varying from $1 to $50. The Near East Relief has announced that the money will be placed in a special fund for use at the Syra orphanage.

A prize offered by a Cairo newspaper for a 250 word essay on "How Rugs are Made, has been won by an American girl working with the Near East Relief in Syria. Her essay is as follows:

"The little workers in my orphanage sit on mats on the floor, with crude hand made looms in front of them, four or more working on a single rug. The designs come from the designing room, taken from ancient rugs, marked in squares and colored. The workers count the warp threads, take a piece of wool in the correct colors, lift two or three threads and tie and cut them. After about an inch of the fabric has been tied, this rough edging is combed up and down. Then with special curved scissors it is cut. Finally comes the brushing.

"Rug-making is a tedious, tiresome and difficult work, and one can be much more appreciative of the beautiful results when one has studied the painstaking methods by which they are obtained.

"The wool is bought from the sheep's back and carefully washed. German dyes are used for coloring, and 500 girls are employed to spin it. A very beautiful rug which we completed a short time ago for the president of the United States, required the labor of all our best rug-makers for nine months. It is now in one of the parlors of the White House in Washington.

"Our rug school has 105 looms. The girl workers range from 12 to 16 years. They also learn to weave cloth for dresses and for towels and table cloths.

"Rug weaving is a craft which teaches industry and economy. It is a practical trade, whose product is always in demand."

GROWING YOUTH NEEDS NOURISHING FOOD

Eating Between Meals Kills the Appetite for Substantial Fare, and Linked With Unhygienic Habits, Paves a Way for Physical Ills.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M.D.
United States Senator from New York.
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

NOT long ago I saw the report of a tuberculosis conference held in Belfast, Ireland. "Tea drinking is ruining people, and silk stockings are to blame for some present-day illnesses," said Dr. Dennis O'Hagen at this gathering. "What is required," he said, "is a health campaign to get people to feed themselves properly. I advise people to drink less tea and to get back to the days of 'strabout' and buttermilk. There would be less tuberculosis if people took this advice." The dish Dr. O'Hagen refers to as "strabout" is an old-fashioned mixture of cornmeal and oatmeal, boiled down and stirred vigorously. It is a common dish in the British Isles.

What the Irish physician has in mind is the changing habits of people everywhere. The old-time simplicity is giving way to styles in dress and practices in eating which are destructive of health and vigor.

Of course, silk stockings in and of themselves can do no harm. But silk stockings and the sheer dresses going with them, lead to exposure and manner of living which are productive of illness and lowered vitality.

Tea drinking and nibbling at cakes and confections between meals destroy the appetite for more substantial foods. The vegetables, salads, fruits, bread and meat foods carrying the essentials, must be had or the health suffers.

Tuberculosis is essentially a disease of the teens and the early twenties. It attacks young people at just the time when silk stockings and social frivolities are most attractive. That is the time of life when out-of-door life, sunlight, good food and plenty of sleep are absolutely essential to the development of the body and all its organs. Unless the lungs are filled constantly with pure air and the blood enriched by proper food, there is sure to be trouble.

When I speak of "proper food" I mean the simple and substantial foods of the olden days. The novelties and titbits, no matter how expensive, are not acceptable substitutes for the bone and muscle building foods of the simplest nature. I like to see young people enjoy themselves and I am not one of those who worry over the "flappers" and "Johnnies" of the day. In character I feel they are all right, but I am worried for fear they may not get the foods and live the hygienic lives which will guarantee strong bodies.

Give heed to these things, dear young people!

Answers to Health Queries
WILLIE B. Q.—What causes a bad headache?
A.—This condition may be due to constipation, catarrhal trouble or intestinal disturbances. Find the cause and the proper treatment can be prescribed.

DISCOURAGED, Q.—I have pains in the back of my head, also a stiff neck on and off. I hold my head still it aches and the same seems to be a cracking sound, also cracking in the ankles and shoulders. My head bothers me most. My blood pressure is 108.

A.—There is probably some infection in your system, which is responsible for your symptoms. First of all determine the source and then definite treatment can be advised. For further particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question. Your low blood pressure will improve when you have had proper treatment.

G. A. B. Q.—Can anything be done for enlargement of the heart?
A.—It is important to avoid excessive exercise and becoming fatigued. Lead a regular life, and consult your doctor from time to time for an examination. Send self-addressed, stamped envelope for further particulars and repeat your question.

R. S. C. L. Q.—What would cause my hands to feel numb and my body to shake as if with a chill? I am not cold. This condition occurs only at night. I have been working on a power machine for fifteen years and stopped this work about three weeks ago. Since then I have noticed the above symptoms.
A.—This is probably due to some fault in your circulation or to over-exertion. Build yourself up generally and see whether or not you notice improvement. Also rest as much as possible. For further particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

Dr. Copeland will answer for readers of this paper questions on medical, hygiene and sanitation subjects that are of general interest. Where the subject of a letter is such that it cannot be published in this column, Dr. Copeland will cheerfully answer a proper one, written by personal letter, if a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Dr. Royal S. Copeland, in care of this office. Copyright, 1924, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.
